Crafton Out Feb. 28, Says Locke

MAYOR INSISTS DIRECTOR WILL LEAVE OFFICE

But Crafton Says He Expects To Remain Unless Locke Terminates Services.

GETS NO NOTICE

Director Renews Statement That He Hasn't Resigned, Reports For Work.

Mayor W. J. Locke, who has insisted that he didn't want Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton to resign, today set the date for the end of his term of office.

Crafton, Locke said, will be through as director on Feb. 28.

Crafton, advised that the mayor had set the Feb. 28 date for him to leave office, said:

"The mayor hasn't told me anything about that. I still maintain that I haven't resigned, and I expect to be in my office on March 1, and thereafter, unless the mayor gives me official notice of the termination of my services as director."

The mayor said that he didn't know that Crafton had denied resigning.

A statement by Crafton to that effect appeared in Sunday's News-Journal.

Locke said he hadn't read it—hadn't read anything in the paper.

The reporter asking him about Crafton's status reached for a copy of the paper in his coat pocket but Locke wouldn't look at it.

"I'm not interested in that. I don't want to see it at all," he said.

It seemed clear that Locke had chosen the Feb. 28 date himself. He admitted Saturday, when he declared that Crafton had submitted a "verbal resignation" to him that no date for it to become effective had been set.

Crafton said that nothing he had told the mayor could be construed as a resignation—and that when and if he resigned, he would do so in writing.

Asked what the status of the

Bound Over In Shooting After Bedside Hearing

Waiving preliminary examination at a bedside hearing at his farm home southeast of Mansfield, Willis Harris, 46, former Ohio State reformatory guard, today was held to the county grand jury under $3,000 bond on a charge of shooting with intent to wound James Wilson, 30, his farm hand. Harris entered no plea.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch went to the Harris home with Sheriff Frank E. Robinson to conduct the brief hearing after physicians advised against bringing Harris to Mansfield for the hearing. Harris suffered a broken back last Dec. 31, when a tractor overturned and pinned him beneath it.

Harris' housekeeper, Miss Zola Chamberlain, 33, was held in the county jail today under $500 bond as a material witness to the shooting which occurred last

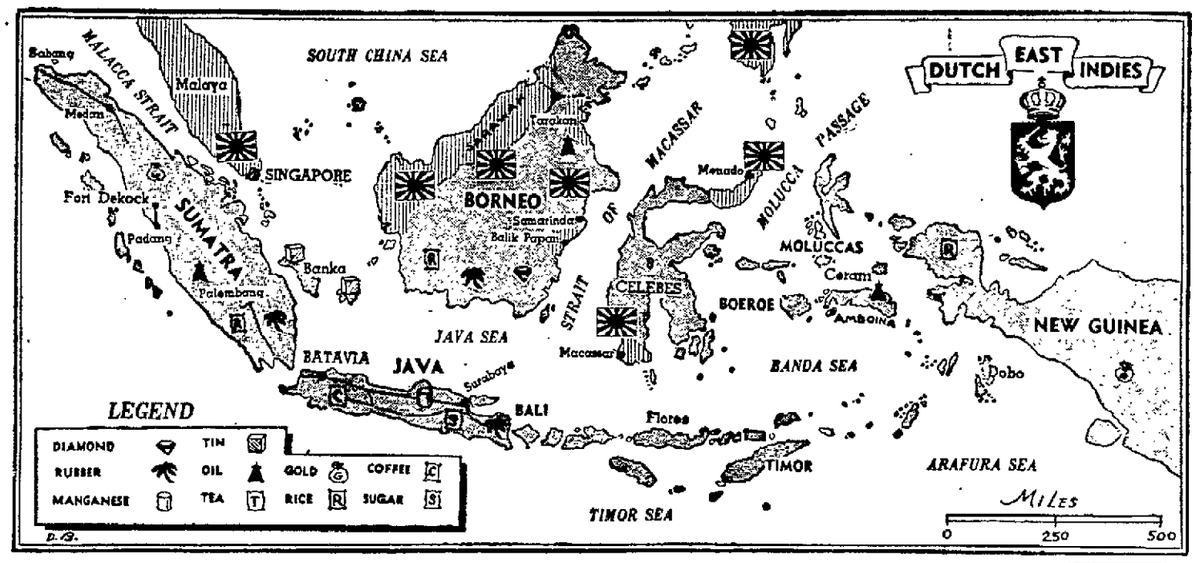
Maps Show Next Pacific War Theater, With Singapore Gone



These two maps give the details and locations of important positions in the Dutch East Indies, the new theater of the war in the Pacific, now that Singapore has fallen to the Japanese. Already, the Japs have taken Palembang, on the island of Sumatra (shown in top map). They were heavily attacked by United Nations planes, and terrible destruction was wrought on Palembang's oil installations—but the Japs landed and took control. The island of Java is equally important. Its riches and the distances to other important points are shown at the bottom.

CURB ON GAS

WPB Moves To Conserve Fuel In Ohio, Other States.

Increases in consumption of natural and manufactured gas will be prohibited in Ohio, West Virginia and 15 other states as well as the District of Columbia, under a War Production board order issued today.

In the designated areas gas companies are prohibited from delivering gas for heating new homes, stores, factories or other buildings unless heating equipment was installed prior to March 1.

They further are forbidden to deliver gas to any new non-residential consumer or to increase the supply to existing non-residential consumers except in special cases.

The order affecting private users applies to heating systems designed to furnish all or the major part of heat for a home. Consumers using gas to cook or heat water are not affected.

Mansfield CAP Pilots to Be on East Coast Patrol

Training For Atlantic Seaboard Observation Flights To Be Started At City's Airport This Week.

Training for flight missions which will include patrol duty along the Atlantic seaboard will be started this week by the Mansfield Civil Air Patrol, it was announced today by James R. Harrington, fifth group commander.

Pilots and observers, Harrington said, will likely be sent to an east coast base from which they will operate for two-week periods. They will be paid by the government for time on active duty.

Only qualified personnel and those who can assume the work without its interfering with their regular employment will be assigned for duty, the commander added.

The assignment of civilian fliers for patrol duties, Harrington said, was designed to release more army and navy pilots from non-combatant duties for service on the nation's far flung battle front.

Announcement that Mansfield pilots and observers, along with other patrol members throughout the state, would be called for duty in the coastal area was made recently by Col. Floyd Evans, CAP area commander, at a meeting of group commanders in Columbus. At the same time Evans outlined details on the types of missions to be carried out by the patrol.

The group commanders were told, Harrington said, that missions will consist of such operations as road, pipe line and power line patrols, courier service, message dropping, motor convoy spotting, river and lake shore patrol, hunting for lost aircraft, selec-

MEETS TONIGHT

Butler School Board To Take Ouster During Session.

BUTLER—Ouster proceedings against School Superintendent Willard S. Weekley is expected to be taken up again by the Butler village school board when it meets tonight at the school.

Today was the deadline for Weekley to answer charges of "misconduct" of which he is accused in an affidavit filed with the board. Indications were, however, that the superintendent would ignore an answer in view of the board's action at a special meeting last week lifting a suspension which he had been previously served.

The superintendent was suspended Feb. 4 pending a hearing on the charges filed by 11 Butler and Worthington township residents. After two stormy days during which a pupil strike was held in protest, the board lifted the suspension pending action at tonight's session.

4,000 SIGN IN REGISTRATION

Draft Enrollment Continues Tonight Until 9; Boards Busy Two Days.

Nearly 4,000 Richland county men—a number of them fathers and sons—had signed up today with the county's three selective service boards as registration of men from 20 to 45 entered the third and final day.

The two boards in Mansfield and Madison township registered a total of 2,850 men. Saturday and Sunday afternoons as hundreds of men took advantage of the week-end holiday away from their jobs to list their names and addresses with Uncle Sam. Board 3 had no official count of its new registrants this morning, but it was estimated that more than 1,000 signed up Saturday and Sunday in Shelby and the county rural areas.

The county's 21 registration places will remain open until 9 p. m. today and by that time it Fails To Mention Escape of Three German Vessels; Hails U. S. Entry.

BULLETIN

LONDON —(INS)— Sir Roger Keyes, World war hero and former admiral of the British fleet, revealed today that an inquiry is being made into the "deplorable proceedings" surrounding the sinking of the Prince of Wales and Repulse in the Far East, and the escape of three powerful German warships through the Straits of Dover.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Winston Churchill, standing before his people at one of the blackest hours of their history, has assured them that the United Nations "will be found fully capable of squaring all accounts" and the question before Britain today is how strong remains her faith in his leadership.

Although he bore a message of disaster, the prime minister declared that ultimately the overwhelming fact of the war would be that "the power of the United States and its vast resources . . . are in it with us."

It fell to the prime minister to broadcast to the empire the most dismal news for its people since Dunkirk:

"Singapore has fallen. All the Malay peninsula has been overrun."

That bare statement was all that Britain was told of the loss of her great fortress and the fate of its valiant defenders except for Japan's announcement that Singapore had surrendered unconditionally.

But Churchill frankly acknowledged it to be a "heavy and far-reaching defeat" and, though he was pleading for confidence, he told Britain in unvarnished words:

"Other dangers gather about us out there and none of the dangers which we have hitherto faced successfully at home and in the east are in any way diminished."

Loss of the island citadel, guardian of the gateway to the Indian ocean and a rampart for the defense of the Dutch East Indies and Australia, came after a week of dismaying news for Britain, news which had loosed a cry of doubt in the empire's leadership.

HART KILLED?

Axis Sources Claim He Died During Naval Battle.

LONDON—(INS)—From various, conflicting and wholly unofficial Axis sources, a report was sent to London today alleging that Admiral Thomas C. Hart, U. S. N., former commander-in-chief of United Nations naval forces in eastern waters, was killed in a naval engagement in the Java sea.

The report first was heard by Exchange Telegraph, which quoted a Paris broadcast. The information was said to have come from Shanghai. Both Paris and Shanghai are under Axis control.

Editor's note: The navy department in Washington declined even to comment. A spokesman simply asserted that the department had no such report and that no destroyer called the U. S. S. Hudson was even listed.)

Enemy Draws Close to Allied Supreme Headquarters on Java After Taking Sumatra Oil Center of Palembang In Face of Counter-Assaults.

BULLETIN

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Dutch West Indies—(UP)—A German submarine deep in the American defense zone east of the Panama Canal has torpedoed four oil tankers and shelled the great American-owned refinery on the Dutch island of Aruba, it was disclosed today.

(By United Press)

BATAVIA, Java—The Japanese army invading the main Dutch East Indies islands by air and sea captured the destroyed Sumatra oil center of Palembang and thrust close to Allied supreme headquarters on Java today despite "devastating" counter-blows that blasted 10 enemy transports and warships, including two cruisers, with heavy loss of life.

American, Dutch and British aircraft battered the enemy invasion forces along the Sumatra coast, up the 56-mile Musi river route to Palembang, where the oil facilities had been destroyed, and at three points where enemy parachute troops estimated at 700 well-armed soldiers were landed.

Dutch land forces were reported still fighting south of Palembang to hold the railroad line leading southeastward toward the island of Java.

A communique issued by the United Nations headquarters of Gen. Sir. Archibald Wavell said that:

1—American and Dutch planes scored direct hits on five troop-laden enemy transports and two cruisers, one of which was set aflame, off the Sumatra coast. Three Japanese transports previously had been bombed by the Dutch, making a total of eight ships hit in addition to the cruisers.

2—British eight-gun Hurricanes and Blenheim bombers battered enemy troop transports and barges with bombs and cannon in six attacks as they moved up the Musi river toward Palembang.

3—Dutch defense forces wiped out a great percentage—possibly 500—of the Japanese paratroops landed at three points around Palembang.

Despite the Allied blows, the Netherlands East Indies news agency said that, "a very large" enemy fleet was pouring thousands of Japanese soldiers into Sumatra island as a result of the fall of Singapore.

Thus the western prong of the Japanese pincers moved closer to Java, while the eastern prong was set for an over-water thrust at Soerabaja naval base from Borneo.

(In London, Dutch soufces said that Borneo was "as good as gone and Sumatra cannot be held." The defense of Java was described by there sources as "touch and go.")

Dutch forces in South Celebes island were reported still fighting the enemy in the Macassar sector, one dispatch to the Netherlands news agency stating that an ambush had killed "some 30 to 40 Japanese soldiers and two officers without loss to our side."

Japanese airplanes bombed "a small place in New Guinea," wounding four persons and doing "great damage" to government buildings and houses, the agency said.

The Dutch had applied vigorously the "scorched earth" in the great oil fields around Palembang, destroying at least $100,000,000 worth of facilities and dashing the hopes of the

60,000 LOST: British Fear Singapore Captive Toll High

(By United Press)

LONDON—Fear spread today that the entire empire garrison, estimated at 60,000 men, had been involved in the surrender of Singapore to the Japanese.

Nearly 24 hours after the cessation of fighting, government authorities said they were completely without news of the situation or of the fate of the British, Australian, Indian, Malayan and Sarawak troops.

A military commentator disclosed that some time Sunday afternoon, Singapore time, Gen. A. E. Percival, commanding at Singapore, advised Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, United Nations commander-in-chief, that because of heavy losses and lack of water, fuel, food and ammunition his position was hopeless and further defense was impossible, and that he intended to surrender.

The commentator said that he had no information whatever on Axis reports that many Empire troops had evacuated.

"We know nothing," he said. "There was no policy of evacuation. The intention was always to fight it out to the last. There was some evacuation of women, children and wounded and there may have been some evacuation in the case of technical troops.

"We had very heavy losses in material."

The commentator said that the Empire troops in the Malaya campaign included the 18th British division, two brigades of the 8th Australian division, the 9th and 11th Indian divisions, totaling about 55,000 men, plus some fortress troops and supply and ord-

NEXT: Japs Blast At U. S. Defenders Of Batan Peninsula

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Renewal of heavy enemy artillery fire on the Batan peninsula today indicated that the Japanese are attempting to blast Gen. Douglas MacArthur's lines in preparation for the anticipated grand land assault now that Singapore has fallen.

In one of the briefest communiques in recent weeks, the war department reported only intermittent artillery fighting but spoke significantly of enemy aviation being "active throughout the day."

A large scale renewal of artillery fire and Japanese bombing activities has been anticipated ever since the downfall of Singapore became imminent.

Military experts have predicted for some time that MacArthur's position will become extremely critical when the enemy moves adequate planes and heavy batteries for a concerted onslaught against the defenders on Batan peninsula and the American-held forts across Manila bay.

While the communique did not mention possible American counter fire, MacArthur's forces in the past have withheld their barrages until they were certain of the enemy positions.

Japan Unlocks Door to Indian Ocean By Seizing Singapore, Key Held By British for 123 Years

By CARL C. CRANMER
(Associated Press Foreign News Staff)

By the capture of Singapore Japan unlocks the door to the Indian ocean and perhaps to the riches of the Netherlands East Indies.

The key had been held by Britain for 123 years. Now the flag of the Rising Sun flies there.

The Japanese fleet now may rest in security on a broad anchorage of 22 square miles behind shore guns, mined passages and air fields.

On a cruise of 2,000 miles and back it can sweep the Bay of Bengal and the Indian ocean to Calcutta—threaten all the east coast of India.

To the Gulf of Martaban is an easy voyage. Sea blockade, besides the land forces now released for an offensive across the Salween into Burma, now threatens the backdoor of Chiang Kai-Shek.

To the east, the Japanese fleet by a 2,000-mile cruise can pass all the Dutch East Indies and attack the west coast of Australia.

Because ships require coaling or fueling stations and airplanes require landing fields, Japan's power based at Singapore threatens Australia's communications to the west with India, the Middle East, Suez and the home country.

It is now an easy hop for the Japanese soldier across Malacca straits from Singapore to the Dutch East Indies island of Sumatra. Down that 1,000-mile long island he now may attempt to march almost to Java, the heart of the Indies, if he does not choose to go in ships.

From her islands in the north to the corner bastion at Singapore in the south, Japan now holds the Asiatic coast and its outposts.

The gallant defense at Batan, which denied to the Japanese the use of Manila bay, has proved useless. The Japanese have a better base at Singapore.

Singapore was created by the British from an insignificant fishing village which they acquired by cession from the sultan of Johore in 1819, and lost in a nine-weeks campaign.

Sir Stamford Raffles was the founder of the city, and it grew to a population of 750,000 from the rich trade that passed between east and west. The British spent $400,000,000 on an elaborate naval base, fortifications, airfields and other defenses, but lacked manpower and planes on the spot to stop an overwhelming Japanese drive through 400 miles of Malay jungle which had been reckoned as one of the major natural defenses of the stronghold.

GEN. JOHNSON: Asks Congress Probe of Normandie Fire

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—If I were Mr. Hitler or the sun-god emperor in Tokyo, I would risk a good deal not to disturb the still enduring tranquility of the great American sleeping giant.

There is no doubt that by strategy, surprise and stealth they could drop a few very destructive bombs on the most congested districts of New York, Philadelphia or the beautiful buildings of Washington, to find the ground air-defense wholly inadequate, even though they took a deadly drubbing in the sky.

Gen. Johnson.

But it wouldn't be worth anything in strategic gain to them and it certainly would arouse something that has been sorely lacking in our defense—the heat of genuine old-fashioned American anger down to the very bootpegs of Uncle Sam.

The lack of that is worth divisions, corps and whole armies to them and the benefit to be gained just a little less than nothing.

I trust this is giving no confidential information. It isn't, unless they are blind. Japanese aircraft did fly up the Pacific coast from San Diego to San Francisco and didn't leave anything behind them.

Just the same there is a chance, and it indicates something that OCD should be—and something it should not. In cities which are by any reasonable chance in danger it should be an organization of he-men under some military command auxiliary to local fire and police departments, organized to fight and control fires and panic, to render first aid, and keep communications with hospitals open.

When there are enough anti-aircraft guns available, trained local civilian gun-crews of men able bodied, but not fit for field duty, would release more men for service with the colors. Further than that, as the problem stands today, it is just boondoggling nonsense.

But we're going to get ours soon. I don't know why our troops were sent to Ulster. My own guess is that it was to help guard the valuable bases of North Ireland. That might materially shorten the most dangerous sea lane of the Atlantic patrol. Another is that it was to help our friend Winston Churchill in the political storm gathering over his head. Whatever the reasons, they are there exposed. They are ours. We wish them well.

Looking about for another point of attack, we see Curacao and Aruba in South America where we are sending troops. I have never been to either place, but I have recently talked to a few of the best informed oil men.

To these points have been extended the pipelines draining the great South American Oil fields which may turn out to be the richest in the world. Great refineries are located there, out in the ocean, where as it was described to me by a man who had reported it to the president, they stand out like sore thumbs — defenseless, a standing invitation to attack.

A German seizure of this position so close to Africa would be a catastrophe, and successful destructive raids could seriously hurt our available supply of oil.

Of course last and most vital of the spots where we are targets is the Panama Canal. Officers who have been stationed both there and at Hawaii tell me that the Panamanian defense is much more alert and better manned than was Pearl Harbor.

It had better be. Just as our whole Far Eastern strategy was based on Pearl Harbor and Singapore so is our whole world strategy with a one-ocean navy based on Panama.

Our outlook is not too bright. The war thus far has gone against us. But any very great danger of our losing it is not in sight, if we can keep Panama open, and loss of it would be the greatest disaster we could suffer.

2 DIE IN AUTO ACCIDENTS IN RICHLAND AREA

Morrow County Bride of Five Weeks Killed as Car Upsets on Highway Near Galion.

Accidents near Galion and Norwalk contributed two deaths from the Mansfield area to Ohio's weekend traffic toll of eight.

There were no serious accidents in Mansfield or Richland county, reports showed today.

Married only five weeks, Mrs. Harlo Shumaker, 19, of near Martel, the former Mildred Lyons, of Morrow county, was killed in an automobile accident shortly after 10 p. m. Saturday while on her way to Galion with her husband.

Shumaker, 21, was driving to Galion when his car skidded on Route 30-S, about a mile south of Galion. The car upset in a ditch, the top crashing into a telephone pole. He suffered a brain concussion, badly lacerated forehead and right hand, and bruised knees.

The Whittridge ambulance was summoned to the accident scene and brought the couple to City hospital where Mrs. Shumaker was pronounced dead.

Mary Brown, 21, of Norwalk, was killed when the car in which she was riding with Paul Miller, 22, son of former Common Pleas Judge Earl F. Miller, hit the rear of another car that had parked at the scene of an earlier accident. Miller was injured.

Four men homeward-bound from a night club near Toledo were killed in the collision of their automobile and a snow plow.

Three of the victims were employes of the Club Devon. They were: Charles Voight, 48; Samuel Kane, 36, and Albert Baker, 40, all living in Detroit. The fourth was not identified. The accident occurred on the Dixie highway south of Monroe, Mich., Sunday morning.

Hamilton county recorded its 22nd and 23rd traffic fatalities of 1942 with the deaths of Edward Malloney, 32, in the collision of his car and a parked truck near Cleves, and Irvin Leonard, 36, a plumber, hit by a machine in Cincinnati.

Other fatalities included:

Gallipolis—William Pike, 60, of Crown City, hit by taxi on State Route 7.

Canton — Steve Cincinnat, 28, baker of Navarre, in a two-car crash on Route 30.

Lodi—Richard Sesler, 19, of Mt. Gilead, of Feb. 7 accident injuries.

Youngstown—Andrew Lodis, 60, struck by car.

VANDENBERG TO REQUEST SENATE QUIZ

Demand Raises New Problem as Leaders Work on Pensions, OCD.

WASHINGTON—The administration made its immediate aim today prompt disposal of two plaguingly controversial issues — congressional pensions and the much-criticised "frills" of the civilian defense program — but found a new problem in the demand for a legislative investigation of the Normandie disaster.

Forecasting administration opposition to the move, Senator Vanderberg (R.-Mich.) prepared to lay before the senate tomorrow a resolution authorizing the senate naval affairs committee to make an independent investigation of the fire which swept the French de luxe liner, now known as the U. S. S. Lafayette, in New York harbor a week ago.

The navy announced Saturday that a court of inquiry was being conducted, but Vanderberg said that was all the more reason why congress should determine whether sabotage or "criminal carelessness" caused the disaster. He contended that the navy was responsible for protection of the ship and should not be the only agency to decide whether its responsibility was fully discharged.

Meanwhile, the pensions and civilian defense issues moved toward a speedy conclusion. The senate arranged to take up tomorrow a $160,000,000 deficiency bill, approved by its appropriations committee in the form passed by the house previously.

The house had amended the measure to prohibit the use of office of civilian defense funds to pay for fan dancing, street entertainments and other activities of the physical fitness division. Few senators thought that any arguments on behalf of such activities could overcome the committee's powerful opposition to their inclusion.

Both senate and house committees were ready to take up measures to repeal a section of the recently-enacted civil service retirement law making government pensions available to congress members under certain conditions.

Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky said he was confident the senate civil service committee would approve the repealer quickly and that it would be voted by the senate.

While leaders were confident both of these issues could be disposed of, they felt less assurance about the success of their attempts to defeat a farm bloc move to prevent any government sale of surplus crops that would keep down agricultural prices.

Scheduled for consideration in the senate later in the week was a measure by Senators Gillette (D-Iowa), Bankhead (D-Ala.), Russell (D-Ga.) and Thomas (D-Okla.) which would prohibit such government sales for this purpose.

REPORTS NEED FOR WORKERS

Ohio Employment Chief Tells of Present Shortages In Defense Factories.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A shortage of assembly workers is the greatest single employment problem facing Ohio's war plants, Wade Hammond, state director of the U. S. employment service, said today.

Hammond's report on figures from 1,450 plants employing 50 or more workers showed these factories need 4,166 detail assemblers, 1,613 floor assemblers, 2,765 machinists, 2,007 sheet metal workers, 1,993 tool makers, 1,571 engine lathe operators and 1,200 milling machine operators.

Worker training programs and placement of men now in "non-essential civilian production" are expected to meet the increased needs of defense plants next year, the U. S. S. E. official asserted.

Employable Ohioans who want to work "ought to have a job" before next Jan. 1, Hammond said in predicting that most of the 206,259 persons on employment service rolls would be placed this year.

The report stated 64,328 workers would be hired by the 1,450 plants and 9,307 laid off by June 30.

Three of five who get jobs will be skilled men and about half of those released will be unskilled, the report said.

U. S. SHIPS SIX PER CENT OF BRITISH ISLES' FOOD NEEDS

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—British authorities estimated today that the increasing stream of American lend-lease food is now providing the British Isles with six per cent of their needs.

Latest figures on shipments indicated that food shipments have reached approximately 500,000,000 pounds a month. American authorities said they hoped to increase shipments to 1,000,000,000 pounds a month by the end of this year.

Agriculture department officials said 3,311,000,000 pounds of agricultural products, principally foods, were delivered to Great Britain under the lend-lease program up to Jan. 1. The value at American ports was placed at $376,000,000.

This food, agricultural department officials said, would fill 69,000 freight cars. That would form a freight train 575 miles long.

This food is turned over to the British government free of charge at American ports. The value is added to the whole British lend-lease "charge account" that will be settled on undetermined terms after the war. The food is delivered in Britain to the government-controlled ministry of food. The ministry sells the food to wholesalers at a price established by the British government. Money received from the wholesalers is paid into the British treasury.

The food, after it leaves the hands of the ministry, loses its American identity unless its origin is indicated on the package. It is sold to retailers the same as any other food at prices set by the government and is purchased for cash by customers. The government likewise fixes the price to be charged consumers for all foods. No distinction as to price is made on American food.

Consumers in order to obtain food must register with their retailers. The government controls the whole food distribution system. Ration allowances are the same throughout the country, with some extra allowances made for heavy workers.

Landon Praises Unity Angle Of Churchill Talk

NEW YORK — (INS) — Alfred M. Landon praised Winston Churchill's radio address to the United Nations today, particularly that part of the prime minister's speech which touched on "unity" of the nations opposed to Hitler.

Landon said Hitler was playing the old game of telling the Americans "the English aren't doing their stuff," and "telling the English the Americans are lying down on the production job."

"Churchill made a very vital point when he said in effect that we must hang together for better or worse," Landon said, "there is no question about our final complete victory if we do that."

JAP INVASION FORCES SEIZE KEY OIL CITY

Take Palembang In Sumatra Despite Severe Losses In Ships and Men.

Japanese that they could seize the main East Indies oil supply.

The Palembang area supplies around half of the East Indies oil production and the enemy had landed hundreds of parachute troops there in an effort to prevent destruction of the fields. Virtually all of the paratroops were wiped out by the Dutch but the landing on the Sumatra coast and on the Musi river was successful.

Large numbers of Japanese troops are still pouring into the Sumatra coast, the official statement acknowledging the loss of Palembang, said.

Dutch forces, which eliminated an estimated 700 enemy paratroops before giving up Palemberg, were fighting strongly to hold the enemy south of the city and to maintain control of the railroad running south and east toward the easternmost tip of Sumatra.

Palembang is only 270 miles from Batavia and the Japanese were expected to attempt to drive quickly toward Java, the site of the United Nations supreme headquarters under Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell.

The strait of Sundra, only 27 miles wide at one point, separates Sumatra from Java.

(Allied reinforcements in considerable numbers have recently been reported arriving in Java. In addition to the reported arrival of American airplanes and air personnel, it was said in Sydney on Saturday that large numbers of Australian troops were in position for defense of Java.)

In addition to the drive through Sumatra on the west side of Java, the Japanese were massed in force on the south coast of Borneo island in preparation for a 300-mile overwater attack on the Allied main base, especially aimed at the naval base of Soerabaja. With the fall of Singapore, Soerabaja was the only important naval base left to the Allies in the East Indies area.

Previous communiques had told of the liquidation of the Japanese paratroops but acknowledged the loss to the enemy of the Anambas islands, 150 miles northeast of Singapore.

Australia Awaits Jap Onslaught

SYDNEY, Australia—(AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin declared today that "everything we have, everything which belongs to us must now be mobilized" for the battle of Australia, as a result of Singapore's fall.

The attitude of the government is that a Japanese attack on the commonwealth—a large scale attack from air and sea which may break at any moment—has become inevitable.

The full federal cabinet will assemble here tomorrow, and parliament is due to assemble at Canberra this week.

Further attempts to procure urgently needed essential materials from the United States and Great Britain are certain to be made by the government.

Japs Claim Gains Near Rangoon

RANGOON — (INS) — Japanese forces driving on Rangoon, vital terminus of the Burma road supply line to China, were reported early today to have cracked the British defense lines at several points on the west bank of the Salween river. Their objective was Thaton, a point on the rail line from Martaban to Rangoon. Thaton is 45 miles northwest of Martaban.

(A Vichy radio broadcast heard in London claimed two Japanese columns are advancing toward Papun, in Burma, which is situated west of the Salween river and about 100 miles north and slightly west of Martaban.

(One of these columns was asserted to be moving up from the direction of Martaban, while the other allegedly crossed the Salween river and was attacking the British flank.)

The enemy was apparently moving on the town from three directions — south from captured Martaban, from the southeast opposite Paan where a bridgehead has been established on the west bank of the Salween, and from the west where seaborne troops have been landed on the shores of the Gulf of Martaban.

New Phase Nears In Battle of Africa

(By Associated Press)

Pending the next phase in the battle of Africa—which may be a Hitler surprise—the fighting in the Mediterranean zone was marked today by reports of patrol clashes in Libya, fierce air action, and an Axis assault on a British convoy.

Rome announced that Axis air and sea forces had sunk a British destroyer, a patrol boat and seven merchantmen in a three-day attack on a convoy bound from Alexandria to Malta.

Axis airmen continued to hammer Malta, British Mediterranean Island base 60 miles from Sicily. The Germans said 15 British planes had been shot down in recent action over Malta and North Africa.

The British claimed that a squadron of 18 American-made planes had shot down 21 of a flight of 30 enemy dive bombers and fighters in Libya, in one of the greatest air victories of the African campaign.

In the European theaters the Russian offensive continued unabated, and British bombers overnight blasted at docks in the German-held French port of St. Nazaire, apparently seeking out the light warships which helped the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau escape last week from Brest through Dover strait.

In Russia, Soviet troops were reported assaulting the basic winter defenses established by Hitler while the Moscow drive to stamp out any German spring offensive continued at a furious pace.

Front-line dispatches said the Russians had advanced 30 miles in one undisclosed sector. The British radio broadcast a Stockholm dispatch saying the red army in White Russia was within 72 miles of the old Polish frontier and the Wilno (Vilna) district on the southeast frontier of Lithuania.

Bound Over In Shooting After Bedside Hearing

Monday afternoon in Harris' bedroom.

Harris is accused of firing a revolver charge into Wilson's abdomen as the farm hand prepared to leave for Mansfield to discuss his working agreement with S. A. Foltz, owner of the farm on which Harris lives. Wilson, a former reformatory inmate, was paroled to Foltz last month.

Sheriff Robinson said today that he planned to have Harris brought to General hospital as soon as his condition improves so he can be moved. Edward O'Donnell, appointed a special guard by the sheriff, has been with Harris at nights since a charge was filed against the former reformatory guard last Saturday.

Wilson, who has been in General hospital since the shooting, continued to improve today, hospital attendants said.

4,000 SIGN IN REGISTRATION

Draft Enrollment Continues Tonight Until 9; Boards Busy Two Days.

is expected that close to 6,000 prospective soldiers will have been signed up by the draft boards.

Registrations were reported heavy Saturday and Sunday in Shelby. Clerks of Board 3, which includes Shelby in its area, said 225 men signed up in the northern Richland county city Saturday afternoon and 200 more registered Sunday afternoon.

Four county jail inmates in the registration age group were taken to the Board 3 headquarters in the courthouse this morning to register. Deputy Sheriff G. C. Humphrey was with them.

Registration was heavier at the Mansfield stations Saturday than Sunday afternoon, board clerks said. Board 1, serving the western half of the city, reported 950 men registered in its area Saturday and only 500 yesterday.

One registrant who reported to Board 3 at the courthouse this morning was young enough to have registered in October, 1940, clerks said. His name and others who failed to register before were held separate from the others. It was not indicated what the boards will do with them.

In a few instances fathers registered with their sons. John Kutschall appeared with his son, John, jr., at the Bushnell school registration station yesterday afternoon and both signed up. Board 1 registered its first Chinese resident this morning.

Among the registrants were a number of city and county officials and men prominent in the city's business and professional circles. Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, registered with Board 1 early this morning. Another Board 1 registrant was Paul M. Eliot, a member of the draft board and general chairman of the defense bond campaign organization in the county.

Names of registrants who are signing up now will be placed at the end of the present lists and they probably will not be called until the existing supply of 1-A and prospective 1-A men is exhausted, draft officials had decided today.

Selective service headquarters announced today in Washington that questionnaires on vocational experience will be mailed to all registrants who have not been called into the service. The questionnaires are designed to afford information on registrants' qualifications for jobs in the war production program. The information gained from the questionnaires will supplement that already on file with draft boards.

"Other details cannot be announced," an official said, "until the project is given the go-ahead by Washington."

JAPS' VICTORY ROCKS LONDON

Churchill Admits Seriousness of Loss In Broadcast To United Nations.

The prime minister did not mention the feat of a German naval squadron in slipping home through the English channel in defiance of Britain's home defenders; he did not mention Japan's growing threat to Burma; he touched but briefly on the dark picture in Libya.

Some Britons regarded the government's silence on details of Singapore's downfall as a wise security measure for the present. Expecting Churchill to give parliament a fuller account, possibly later in the week, they reserved judgment.

With the exception of Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, however, all London newspapers which took a stand expressed misgivings and hinted at a rising clamor for change which may reach as far as Downing street.

There was abundant evidence that Churchill may be facing one of the stormiest political battles of his career when the house of commons meets.

Opposition elements were rallying steadily around Sir Stafford Cripps, the returned former ambassador to Moscow who has stayed outside the government as a critic.

Although the prime minister was expected to make a full statement on the escape from Brest of the Nazi battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst and the heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen in order to forestall criticism, it was probable that the opposition would try to get a general debate on both setbacks.

Even more than the defeat at Singapore which, after all, the empire had been prepared to hear, the people were smarting under the naval upset and in some quarters where Churchill's popularity had been strongest the Nazi ships' dash to freedom caused the greatest misgivings.

"We must endure anything, certainly," said the Daily Mail, "but to go on offering us tears, sweat and blood in monotonous gloom of stoical resignation is now to confess . . . that something is seriously wrong with the conduct of the war as a whole."

First reactions from Australia echoed the London newspapers' demands that Churchill share his multitudinous duties, reshape his war cabinet along more compact lines with the ministers freed of departmental duties, and shake out deadwood.

The Express came to his support with the exhortation that "We must stand together under the great leader this land has produced for its trial."

Essentially, this was the prime minister's message: Formidable as are the factors against Britain, they are outweighed by those in her favor. Therefore, the nation must preserve its unity and its confidence in itself.

He asked Britain to put "the good and the bad side by side and let us try to see exactly where we are."

"The first and greatest of events," he began, "is that the United States is now unitedly and wholeheartedly in the war with us. . . .

"I cannot believe there is any other fact in the whole world which can compare with that.

"That is what I have dreamed of, aimed at and worked for, and now it has come to pass."

Churchill also cited the might of Soviet Russia, whose example of unity amid adversity he laid before the British.

"The Russian armies have not been defeated," he said. "They have not been torn to pieces . . . they are advancing victoriously, driving the foul invader from that native soil they have guarded so bravely and loved so well. . . .

"Here, then, are two tremendous facts which will in the end dominate the world situation and make victory possible. . . ."

The leader who rallied the British people after Dunkerque with the promise only of "blood, sweat and tears" gave them only a new promise of "a hard, adverse war for months to come."

In a stirring conclusion he bid them "draw from the heart of misfortune the vital impulse of victory. . . . Let us move forward steadfastly together into the storm and through the storm."

Churchill reviewed Britain's vast and complex problems before Japan's declaration of war, just keeping "our heads above water at home," and asked whether, in view of the narrow margin of survival in the west, "could we have provided for the safety of the Far East against such an avalanche of fire and steel as has been hurled upon us by Japan?"

He acknowledged candidly that Japan, by plunging into the war, had put "another heavy and terrible side to the account" he was rendering the empire. . . .

"Tonight the Japanese are triumphant," he said gravely. "They shout their exultation around the world. We suffer. We are taken aback. We are hard-pressed.

"But I am sure, even in this dark hour, that criminal madness will be the verdict which history will pronounce upon the authors of the Japanese aggression. . . .

"We must not underrate the power and malice of our latest foe. But neither must we undervalue the gigantic, overwhelming forces which now stand in line with us in this world struggle for freedom, and which, once they have developed their full natural inherent power, whatever has happened in the meanwhile, will be found fully capable of squaring all accounts and setting all things right for a long time to come."

PEAK CLIMBER GOES OVER TOP

School Tutor Scales Capitol Mountain, Highest of Colorado Peaks.

(By United Press)

ASPEN, Colo. — Saving the hardest until the last, husky Robert M. Ormes, school tutor and one of the nation's best mountain climbers, finally has scaled all of Colorado's peaks 14,000 feet or more tall.

Twenty years after he began mountain climbing, Ormes topped The Capitol, a rugged height in the Elk Range.

Colorado has 51 mountains over 14,000 feet in altitude. The Capitol, said Ormes, was the most difficult to climb.

Ormes was in a party of five making the climb. The peak has a spectacular knife-edge ridge and it was by this edge of rock that the ascent was made. In some places the men had to straddle the mountain's sharp edge.

It was back in 1921 that Ormes, under the tutelage of Albert Ellingwood, a renowned mountain climber now dead, began his ascents of the many varieties of rocky climbs afforded in this state.

Mountain climbing quickly attracted Ormes. For a three-week period he scaled a peak a day, in the Mosquito and Collegiate ranges. Later the mere ascent of a mountain became tame and Ormes sought out difficult routes up the rock faces to the summits.

Others already had reached the tops of Colorado's better known mountains — Pike's Peak, Mount Elbert, whose 14,425-foot summit is the state's highest, and others. But Ormes pioneered in tackling perilous rock and ice ascents not previously attempted. He participated in first ascents of many peaks under 14,000 feet high.

"There is plenty of marvelous high climbing in Colorado which does not require rope technique," Ormes said. "But climbing may be found in this region which is as hard as any done in the Swiss Alps, with the exception that one has less use for snow and ice technique unless he climbs in the spring."

nance units, making the total considerably higher.

It had taken the Japanese only a few weeks to drive down the Malay peninsula from Thailand, the British Imperial forces had withdrawn from Malaya to the island Jan. 31, two weeks ago. The Japanese had attacked one week later, needing only one week to take the island fortress.

An Australian correspondent who reached Batavia from Singapore reported that an Australian warship had rescued 1,300 soldiers from a burning transport which 40 Japanese planes were attacking seven miles off Singapore.

Jap Troops Start Singapore Clean-Up

TOKYO (From Japanese broadcasts)—(AP)—Japan celebrated the conquest of Singapore today as a tremendous achievement giving her armed forces the key to India and Australia and virtual control over vital supply routes to embattled China.

The official announcement of the fall of the citadel over which the British flag had waved for 123 years said the surrender had been complete and unconditional.

Domei, in a dispatch today from Singapore, said British forces in Singapore at the time of the surrender comprised 60,000 men.

"These troops included campaigning forces, fortress guards and volunteers made up of 15,000 of the British Metropolitan forces, 13,000 Australians and the remainder Indians," it said.

"There are a million inhabitants still in Singapore, including 100,000 British."

The immense strategic importance of Singapore and the effect of its fall upon the future course of the war in the Pacific was emphasized by Col. Hideo Ohira, chief of the army press section, in a broadcast to the nation.

"The passing of the British stronghold into Japanese hands," he asserted, "not only is a striking blow to the Allies but seriously impedes communications between their territories in the Indian and Pacific oceans. Japan is in position to control the fate of India and Australia."

A Domei dispatch from Singapore gave this account of the surrender.

"Lieut Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, commander-in-chief of the Japanese expeditionary forces, dictating Japanese terms for the surrender of Singapore at a meeting last night with Lieut. Gen. A. E. Percival, commander-in-chief of British forces in Singapore.

"The following conversation took place between the Japanese and British commanders:

"Yamashita: 'I wish replies to be brief and to the point. I will only listen to unconditional surrender.'

"Percival: 'Yes.'

"Hamashita: 'Have any Japanese soldiers been captured by the British?'

"Percival: 'No, not a single one.'

"Yamashita: 'I want to hear a decisive answer, and I insist upon unconditional surrender. What do you say?'

"Percival: 'Yes.'

"Yamashita: 'All right, then. Cease firing must be ordered at exactly 10 p. m. I will immediately send 1,000 Japanese troops into the city area for maintaining peace and order. Do you agree to that?'

"Percival: 'Yes'."

DIES AFTER HE REGAINS SIGHT

85-Year-Old Coloradoan Eagerly Watches Sun Rise.

DENVER — (INS) — Funeral arrangements were being made today for Charles Le Roy Foster, 85-year-old Colorado pioneer who collapsed and died shortly after recovering his sight.

Blind since 1938, Foster never had given up hope he would see again. Over the week-end, his hope materialized. The sun was rising when he suddenly exclaimed to his nurse, "I can see! It's daylight, and I can see it!"

Foster eagerly watched the sunrise.

"I knew I would see it all again," he said. Then he died.

"Watch Those Bumps" if you want your tires to last.

Just to give you an idea . . . swinging a sledge hammer on a tire with all your might wouldn't do one-tenth the damage of backing into a curb, bumping over raised railroad tracks at high speed or hitting a hole in the road. So watch those bumps! Remember—with proper care you can get up to 50,000 miles from a set of tires. But a hard bump can ruin a tire at any mileage.

A SURE SIGN of Improper Lighting

WHEN your child squints while reading or studying—it's usually a sign of inadequate lighting conditions. Unfortunately, the children themselves seldom realize that they are subjecting their eyes to improper lighting. It is therefore important that all parents be constantly on the alert to see that adequate light is provided wherever they use their eyes.

Black Outlook for United Nations

NOW that Singapore, the "impregnable" British stronghold in the Orient, has fallen to the Japanese, and Sumatra is not expected to long withstand the concentration of enemy force being directed toward that rich prize—what will be next on the schedule of the thus far not seriously hampered Nipponese war machine?

Following the capture of Singapore yesterday, a triumphant Tokyo heralded to the world Japan's firm resolve to destroy Great Britain and the United States—with another generation being dedicated to the task in the event it is not completed by this one.

Such a pronouncement evidences the fanatic zeal with which Japanese militarists and their submissive followers have prepared for this war, and for the energy and shrewdness with which they are performing their part of the Axis pact in the western Pacific, with their threat now extending to the Indian ocean and southward toward Australia.

Now that Singapore has fallen, the danger to Rangoon is greatly increased and the Burma Road, gateway of aid to China's fighting forces, is more seriously menaced than ever before.

Hope is being held that the island of Java, in the Dutch Indies group, and lying between Sumatra and Australia, can be sufficiently strengthened to hold against Japanese onslaught, but this must also be considered as problematical, in the light of happenings of the past two months—and the fate of Australia seems in doubt.

In the midst of all this turmoil lie the Philippines, with Manila already surrendered and with General MacArthur and a small force of Americans and Filipinos attempting to fight off ten times their number of Jap attackers—a task that seems even more hopeless than Britain's valiant attempts to hold Hong Kong and Singapore.

Little wonder that Prime Minister Churchill's Sunday afternoon talk to his countrymen and to the world was in solemn tone, and keyed to the need of making the people of Great Britain, and of all the United Nations, understand that a grave crisis is at hand and that the victory that MUST COME will not be easily won. Much will depend on what the United States—and every loyal American—does in the coming weeks and months, possibly years, to aid this country's contribution to the war effort, by military participation, production of war equipment, supplies and food, purchase of defense bonds, co-operation in civilian duties, and willing sacrifice of commodities needed for war purposes.

Don't Play With Civilian Defense!

WITHDRAWAL of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt from a position of authority in the Office of Civilian Defense, which she promises will be "soon," may not, in itself, assure a more realistic approach to the serious wartime tasks of that organization, but it will at least open the way to restoration of public confidence in OCD, which has been sadly shaken by revelations of the past couple of weeks.

Mrs. Roosevelt, enthusiastic, capable, versatile and ubiquitous as she may be, has the not uncommon trait of permitting friendship to supersede judgment in the selection of persons to fill positions in the public service—either actual jobs or jobs that can be made to meet needs of the occasion, as in recent placements of a dancing protege and other friends in OCD.

Putting aside the seeming eccentricity of the wife of the president of the United States writing a daily newspaper column and appearing regularly on a commercial radio program, Mrs. Roosevelt must be credited with having done much good through her work in behalf of the underprivileged, and her intentions—even when seeming to encourage Communist-inspired group activities—have probably been sincere at all times.

But the influence that she has exerted in staffing the central office of civilian defense with a liberal sprinkling of thespian, terpsichorean and pink-tinged friends has been too obvious to merit other than the condemnation it has received in congress and throughout the country.

Civilian defense, as it is understood by most people who are struggling to meet living costs, pay taxes and buy defense bonds, means actual, tangible defense against present and potential dangers of war—and under that interpretation it is a task for military direction and civilian cooperation, rather than a pink tea or a dancing party.

Webster's definition of "soon" is "quickly; without delay," and it may be hoped that Mrs. Roosevelt has that understanding of the word.

Carelessly Voted Themselves Pensions

CARELESSNESS, it appears, rather than intent to sneak through a treasury raid, was responsible for congressmen voting themselves pensions last month.

Now they want to correct their act of carelessness by repealing the "pensions for congressmen" part of the bill passed by the house under "unanimous consent" procedure, at which time one objector could have blocked passage.

Explanation by senators is somewhat more difficult as the upper house passed the bill by a 42-24 vote and it may be assumed that the senators knew what was in it—but thirty senators are listed as not voting on the measure, and the airing that it has since received has not been such as to encourage continued support.

Both Ohio senators, and a majority of this state's representatives in congress, have expressed disapproval of the new pensioning law, as it applies to congressmen and other elective officials.

Representative Ramspeck, of Georgia, who engineered the bill through the house, is not among those favoring repeal, but the furore all over the country has been so politically ominous that quick undoing of a bad blunder appears likely.

Back in the old days "stealing candy from a baby" was considered the limit in meanness—but Chicago police are now looking for a fellow who steals rubber tires from baby buggies.

It develops in connection with an appealed liquor board case that the name of a Columbus night club operator is Phil Gutter. That's all.

Instead of being confined to Finland, there must be a number of places over the world where there is a Helsinki feeling just now.

Donald Duck seems to have been doing quite nicely in Hollywood—but as soon as he got to Washington he wanted a pension.

President's Wife Creates Problem

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—The problem presented by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's participation in various government affairs is not an easy one to solve, and even if solved in the way a great many critics seem to think would be satisfactory would work extreme hardship on a person of the energy that the First Lady possesses to such an extraordinary degree.

The nub of the problem is that the wife of a president cannot by any stretch of the imagination be treated as an ordinary employe or official of the government. It is not because she is a woman. The same problem would be presented if a woman were president of the United States; only then would apply to her husband.

AN ORDINARY person appointed to any high office stands or falls on performance. Colleagues or lieutenants or superiors treat that person with full knowledge that if that person makes bad mistakes, calculated to injure the administration, he or she is liable to be asked to resign by the president.

Also, in dealing with an ordinary official, his or her associates are able to carry their dissenting views, if they think them sufficiently important, to the president, with the hope that the decision of their chief or colleague, if they can convince the president that they are right, will be overruled by the chief executive.

There is no danger—and this is one of the most important features of this system of government—that the official thus overruled would be able to punish the person or persons whose judgment had been thus sustained by the president.

Naturally they might expect resentment, and possibly punishment, if they had overestimated their own logic, and hence had been overruled by the president. This fear would always be there. They would have to be very sure they were right before making an issue of any given difference of opinion.

This in turn would have the salutary effect of not burdening the president with too many questions which ought to be decided without his being bothered about them.

BUT in the case of the WIFE of the president the situation becomes almost hopeless in cases where her judgment happened to be bad. No colleague and no subordinate would be likely to appeal to the president over the head of his wife. Especially not in the case of a wife so active and so vitally interested in so many phases of governmental activity as Mrs. Roosevelt! They would fear to find her hand against them from then on in every one of their activities.

This is not to say that Mrs. Roosevelt would stoop to such a course of conduct as trying to punish people who disagree with her, and who dared to take their disagreements to her husband. All the evidence is that she is NOT that kind of person. But it is expecting too much of human nature, especially as affected by political ambition, to think that any official would dare risk not only angering the president's wife, but angering the president.

Yet it might be tremendously in the interest of the country, even to the extent of winning the war, that somebody should check EVERY official, and that any possible error should be subjected to as much criticism and study as possible, without fear or favor.

What is Mrs. Roosevelt to do with herself? That is a problem for her to decide.

Lower Death Rate of Married Folks.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HATE to be in on the death of a joke, and there is nothing that kills a good joke as quickly as the sober-sided demonstration that it is literally true.

But one joke is dead. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, with cold, clammy logic, has proved that the old one about why married people live longer—"they don't, it only seems longer" is not a joke but is literally true.

Among males in the essentially productive ages of life, the death rate among the single or widowed is about double that among the married, according to statistics for New York state, exclusive of New York City, for the years 1929 to 1931.

Recorded Rates.

At the age of forty, the actual mathematically recorded rates were 6 per 1,000 among the married and 12 per 1,000 among the single and 13 among the widowed.

Single women and widows are a little less resistant than their married colleagues. At the age of forty, married women have a death rate of 5 per 1,000 as against 6 among single and 7 among widows.

Of course, these figures are open to a certain amount of interpretation. Widows and widowers are, by the very nature of their situation, older than married people and therefore the death rate is higher.

The same does not, however apply to the single people, but other factors enter in. Alcoholism, for instance, particularly among males, is far more prevalent among the single and widowed than among married people. The actual figures show that 1½ per cent of all deaths at the ages of twenty to forty-four for the single and 1 per cent for the widowed were attributed to alcoholism, while for the married, there was only a little more than ½ of 1 per cent.

Accidents More Frequent.

Accidents appear to happen more often to people living alone than to those who have family attachments. Single and widowed people are more inclined to take serious risks. The death rate among widowed males between the ages of twenty and forty-four was due to accidents in 22 per cent of all deaths. This is an astonishing figure. Tuberculosis and accidents taken together account for almost one-half of the deaths in this group.

Suicide is also higher among the single and widowed, which would seem to indicate that the responsibility of a family tends to strengthen the will to live even when seemingly insurmountable problems present themselves.

Another group of diseases which indicate that there is some difference between the married and single state is influenza and pneumonia. Single and widowed males between forty-five and seventy-four have a rate of 7, while the same group among the married have a rate of 6.

That females do not show quite the marked difference might be interpreted as indicating that the married men have someone to look after them and flutter over them and make them change from wet to dry clothes and keep them from exposure.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Unity Evinced After Pearl Harbor Reduced By Hush-Hush War Policy

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—One week after Pearl Harbor, Wendell Willkie was invited to lunch at the White House. During his visit Willkie gave this friendly, frank advice to the president:

"You have come through this (Pearl Harbor) in very good shape. The American people are solidly behind you. They realize it wasn't your fault. But the thing you've got to guard against is another mistake. If there should be another great catastrophe the reaction will be different."

Fortunately, the downfall of Singapore, catastrophic as it is, is not regarded as Roosevelt's fault. However, some of the resentment of which Wendell Willkie warned is beginning to creep into the press, the letters to congress and the general neighborhood conversation.

Very definitely, a feeling of less-confidence is beginning to permeate the country. The public feels less confidence in the navy—which the American people had considered the finest and most powerful in the world. And there is less confidence in the Roosevelt administration and the general way things are being run in Washington.

Nobody knows better than the president himself what a tragedy this is. For the one great thing which resulted from Pearl Harbor, and which almost made up for our losses, was an absolutely unified nation.

Pearl Harbor Mystery.

THAT unity is slowly evaporating, first because too great a feeling of optimism was radiated from high places immediately after Pearl Harbor and since; second, because the public, not even today, has been given any real idea of how devastating were the losses at Pearl Harbor.

Because the public never was told the blunt, sickening truth regarding these losses, it does not now realize why the U. S. Navy has not been able to help Singapore, why we have not been able to reinforce General MacArthur, why we were not even able to send a rescue fleet to the beleaguered marines at Wake island.

And because people still do not know the full losses of Pearl Harbor, they are inclined to think that something may be wrong with the quality and fighting ability of the U. S. Navy.

The tragedy is that almost everyone except the American people knows the truth about Pearl Harbor. An American ambassador who just flew back from southern Europe reports that the French, the Italians, even the Arabs know the detailed extent of our losses.

Japs Took Pictures.

IN RIO DE JANEIRO, during the recent Pan-American conference, the Japanese embassy made it a point to inform every Latin-American government what the Pearl Harbor losses were. The Japanese had even taken pictures of the ships beached or with masts sticking from the water. This certainly was no military secret to our enemies.

Finally, about 20,000 Americans are now returning to the United States from Honolulu and most of them have had occasion to drive along the road past Pearl Harbor and view the losses first hand. They are sure to tell their friends and relatives. And no secret held by 20,000 people long remains a secret.

Last December this column wrote: "We feel that this war cannot be won without knowing what we face. We believe the American people will respond all the greater if there is no punch-pulling or political covering of the grave defeat at Pearl Harbor."

We still believe that to be the case. The American people aren't yellow. They have faced disastrous crises in the past, and are equal to them again—if they don't get complacent, if they know the facts and if they don't lose confidence.

The American public will forgive mistakes if made honestly—but they won't forgive being fooled.

British Hush-Hush.

THE hush-hush policy of the Roosevelt administration today is not unlike the situation in England near the start of the war. At one time in September, 1939, about one month after the war started, the ministry of information (censorship office) seized all morning editions of the London papers because they reported that British troops were then fighting side by side with the French. Radio France, the official French radio, had announced it. But even so, it was censored news in Great Britain.

So Lord Macmillan, minister of information, a very charming and noble lord who wore a cutaway coat and striped trousers, received a protesting delegation of newspapermen. And to pacify them, he began the conference by telling about the interesting recipe of his cook for making a truffle dish.

Finally, Trilbey Ewer, of the London Daily Herald, could stand it no longer.

"Lord Macmillan," he said, shaking his finger at the noble lord, "we are not one whit interested in your truffles. I charge you, sir, with responsibility for the abysmal boredom of the British people in this war. I charge you with hiding the facts so that the British people have not been spurred into a real war effort.

"You have already totalitarized us economically and financially. You have regulated our factories, our food, our prices, our profits and our wages. The only thing we have left is our freedom to debate, to worship and to criticize. And as far as I am concerned, the only thing that keeps you fellows honest and prosecuting this war efficiently is a free and militant press."

Since then the British government has come around to giving the British public the cold, unpleasant facts. And the British public has learned to take it.

The American public also can take it.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The Capital in Wartime:

Almost as soon as this is written, a bill may be speeding toward the White House to bring women into the army.

The WAAC (Women's Army Auxiliary Corps) will probably start off with something like 12,500 women, working principally as coastal air defense workers, stenographers, telephone operators, chauffeurs, etc. But that will be just the beginning. From England, our army has learned that many duties can be performed by women just as well, if not better, than by men.

The Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers (Mass.) bill has had some critics. But one thing that practically clinched the idea that women would come into the army was the insistence of Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, "that I regard the passage of this bill at an early date as of considerable importance."

POINTING out that congress had NOT failed to give the army practically everything it had asked for in recent months, the general continued: "There are at the present moment (women) volunteers being employed for critical phases of the aircraft warning service, on which the security of the coast lines of the United States depends. We are deeply appreciative of the work being done by these volunteers, but I am convinced that in such vital matters the uncertainties of purely volunteer personnel are a dangerous risk."

Under present plans, women between the ages of 21 and 45, will be acceptable. They may be married or single. They will get ordinary private's pay and up, depending upon rank. Unless they live at army cantonments, there will be additional subsistence pay.

IN SPITE of all the setbacks that Civilian Defense has taken in Washington—and some of them have been the worst kind of comic opera stuff—nearly 49,000 persons have volunteered for the work and more than 15,000 have already been through their training courses.

WASHINGTONIANS who know the Philippines say that old Emilio Aguinaldo, the insurrecto, in making his purported appeal to the Filipinos to lay down their arms against Japan and calling upon General MacArthur to surrender, either has gone soft in the head or is being duped by threats or wild promises from the Japanese invaders.

Although the old rebel has never ceased to work for Philippine independence (something the United States was handing them), those who have seen him in recent years say he lived in the past and seemed almost grateful for the chance the Americanos had given him for glory and immortality. A week after the war broke out, he strongly repudiated any desire to have disgruntled or Fifth Columnist Filipinos look to him for leadership.

Man About Manhattan

For the Duration

—By GEORGE TUCKER

EVERY morning when I go to the barn, I look wistfully at my '34 model car as it stands in the garage, and wonder just how long I may be able to use it. How often, when the day's work was over, have I taken my wife out driving for fresh air and a change of scenery, after her busy day with children and household cares.

I wondered, whimsically, when the old tires are worn thinner, if I would not park the car on wooden pieces and let it stand, for the duration—and then moth and rust would corrupt, and thieves break through to get the parts for scrap iron.

Down our way, though, there is lots of room for walking. Abundant open spaces are everywhere among these hills. We could cut across the hills to do our village shopping. In doing this we would avoid the highways and slowly stepping through the fields and woodlands, we would enter a little nearer into the life of natural things. The older children and myself would be on speaking terms with the rabbit, the squirrel and the lumbering groundhog. We would know the deeper secrets of the quail, the pheasant and the deermouse. They would build their homes along our pathway.

When I drive an easy-riding car, I lose the proper use of my legs. There is health and recreation in walking. When I walk my natural gait I do not tire so much, for swinging my arms in rhythm with my steps, muscles sparingly used for years spring suddenly into action. Walking purposefully is labor, but labor has a robust dignity that no wise, ambitious man or woman would wish to scorn.

There is a healthy normal satisfaction about a walk through pathless woods and unkept fields that the most respected game of golf cannot give.

When we cannot afford to use the car, we will get better acquainted with our neighborhood on Honey Creek. Curtailment of what we had come to look upon as necessities will bring its compensations. The deprivations of these times will help to build a stronger, tougher race of men and women.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Only One Thing To Fear—"

A reader writes: "in his first inaugural address, President Roosevelt used the words, 'only one thing to fear and that is fear.' Was this expression original with the president?

It was not original with President Roosevelt and, so far as we know, neither the president nor any spokesman ever has claimed that it was.

The words, a favorite maxim of Cardinal Mercier, are ascribed to St. Theresa of Avila, founder of the existing order of Carmelite Nuns, who lived from 1515 to 1582.

The complete saying, as quoted from the writings of St. Theresa, is: "Whenever conscience commands anything, there is only one thing to fear and that is fear."

present, the maternity ward is also under quarantine.

Dr. Wild placed the ward under quarantine Thursday night after it was learned that one mother released from the ward had become ill with scarlet fever and that one of the mothers remaining there had also contracted it.

Only three of the mothers remain in the ward at present. Three have been removed to the isolation ward and the others have been taken to their homes under the direction of their own physicians.

Dr. Wild said that the doctors could move the patients to their homes if the quarantine was maintained at all times. Persons released from the ward for the week preceding discovery of the disease are being kept under quarantine for at least a week.

The Mansfield Visiting Nurses association is preparing to help out for the duration of the emergency created by the scarlet fever quarantine, Nurse Marjorie Palmer, announced today.

Doctors are delivering babies at private homes because of the quarantine. The association nurses assisted doctors in the delivery of five Mansfield babies over the week-end.

Meanwhile, hospital workers are taking steps to clean and sterilize the ward which, according to Dr. Wild, may not be used until about a week after the last patient has been removed.

Locke Claims 'Resignation' Stands; Director Asserts He'll Stay Until—

case would be in that event, the mayor said:

"He can't do that."

Locke asserted Saturday that he had talked to Crafton about 10 days earlier and that Crafton had submitted a "verbal resignation" at that time, despite the mayor's protests that he shouldn't take such a step, and that he didn't want him to leave.

Crafton made his statement after Locke confirmed rumors that Crafton had resigned.

The conflict between the two men came to a climax when Locke returned from a vacation trip to Florida. During his absence, Crafton handled the administration of the city business and received praise for his efficiency and council shortly after the mayor's return designated Crafton as the director of the program for the improvement of the municipal airport.

Rumors were circulated then that the two men had clashed in a verbal battle. Locke scotched the rumors by saying that Crafton was ill and that he had advised him to take a vacation. At that time Locke made no mention of Crafton having resigned or of any indication that he would.

Crafton was in his office this morning as usual and said that although he had seen the mayor in the corridors of the municipal building that nothing had been said about the "resignation" story.

Conversation between the two men was brief in the extreme today.

Crafton was in his office this morning when Locke arrived at City building.

As Locke entered the reception room that separates the offices of the two officials, Crafton said:

"Hello, Bill."

Locke replied with a curt "Hello" and closed his office door sharply behind him.

"I'm here to do my work as usual," said Crafton, "and have no intention of resigning. Nothing has been said to me about any date when I finish my services and I know nothing of any such date."

Although relations between the mayor and director have been none too smooth, they became even more strained since the former's re-election.

Locke said that he had discussed the problem of naming a successor with several persons and admitted that the name of Fred B. Wolff, Mansfield hotel proprietor and former service director, had been suggested but that he had made no decision as yet.

tion of emergency landing fields and terrain familiarization.

Training, the commander said, will be held at the municipal airport here until other airfields in the fifth group, which includes nine north central Ohio counties, are approved by the Civil Aeronautics authority.

All ports in the area, with the exception of Mansfield, have been temporarily closed by the government pending a survey of facilities.

As the result of the new order armed guards at the port now are required to inspect all planes landing at the field. Planes must be searched for cameras and guns and the flier's license inspected, Harrington said.

In addition, all pilots taking off from approved ports are required by the government to carry a flight form filled out at the point of takeoff. It carries the point of destination and the normal time required to make the flight. Any deviation from the course or overtime en route will subject the flier to investigation, the commander said.

Pilots are restricted from landing except at designated landing areas. In other words, if a pilot files a flight plan from Columbus to Cleveland he is not permitted to land at any other ports.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

PROGRAM PRESENTED FOR FOUNDERS' DAY

Forty-fifth Anniversary of Organization of P.T.A. Observed At First Lutheran Church Last Night.

FORTY-FIFTH anniversary of the founding of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers was observed with a "Family Night" program at the First Lutheran church Sunday evening. Mrs. Clayson Bell played the organ prelude and the invocation was given by Rev. Grover E. Swoyer. Musical selections were "The 100th Psalm," by Mueller, and "Thanks Be To God," by Dickson, "List' The Cherubic Host," by Gaul, and "Let All Men Praise the Lord," by Harris, sung by the Treble choir, under the direction of Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine.

The offertory music was "When Children Pray," by Senner. Supt. W. L. Miller opened the program with a tribute to the schools. He stressed the importance of early home training for children, stating that the home, the school and the church are dependent upon each other if an entirely successful program for life is desired. Mrs. K. E. Buhr, president of the Mansfield P. T. A. Council, paid tribute to the past presidents of the council and of the local units. She stated that the first local unit was organized, the last in 1940.

First president of the council, which was organized in 1934, was Mrs. Jacob Weigel. Mrs. Buhr told the audience that through the understanding and devotion of Mrs. Weigel, the groundwork was laid. She was a pioneer, so to speak. Membership in P. T. A. at that time was 354. Today it consists of 3,205 parents and teachers.

Second president of council was Mrs. D. Osborne Meese, who promoted the health and junior safety programs in the schools. Mrs. F. D. Boals, third president, was recognized for her untiring efforts in directing the successful bond issue which resulted in the building of the Johnny Appleseed and John Simpson Junior high schools.

Mrs. Buhr also paid tribute to Mrs. Milo Hieber, fourth president of the council, for her excellent leadership and steadfast work in developing a finer relationship between teacher and parent which led to the vast increase in membership. Mrs. I. W. Basinger, who gave the tribute to the national founders, told the group that the Congress of Mothers was formed on Feb. 17, 1897, as a result of the vision of Alice Birney and Phoebe Hearst. Today there are 2,480,188 P. T. A. members in the United States, Hawaii and Alaska.

This country's congress was informed in reply to a telegram sent to Hawaii following the attack on Pearl Harbor, that the Hawaiian P. T. A. intends to continue its work and to provide education for the children there.

Sermon by Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, was entitled "The Day's Critical Decision." He encouraged those present to serve one God and to serve Him well. Adding that in so doing, they would make strong homes and that would make a strong nation. Rev. Swoyer gave the benediction. C. A. Divelbiss was head usher for the evening. Other ushers were principals of the local schools.

The day was spent in quilting, comfort making and Red Cross sewing. Mrs. Harry Harbeson had charge of devotionals and Mrs. Jesse Byers, vice president, led the business session. A patriotic program about Lincoln, Washington and soldiers of today was presented, with Mrs. Irene Hines, president, in charge.

"Tribute to Lincoln" was given by Mrs. Dorothy Rantz. Mrs. Martha Garver presented "A Living Tribute to Lincoln," about a tree planted in northern Georgia. "Washington's Warning To the United States Not To Be Mixed Up With European Countries," was related by Mrs. Hoover. Mrs. Nellie McCorquedale told about "Valley Forge" and Mrs. Helen Hart spoke on "Washington's Administration."

In tribute to Washington, Mrs. Hines sang "Mt. Vernon Bells." She added an original stanza in honor of soldiers in the present war. Music was played softly during a period of silent prayer. Closing prayer was offered by Mrs. Hoover.

Choir Festival Sunday Afternoon Enjoyed By Many

St. John's Evangelical church was filled to capacity with an appreciative audience for the Junior Choir Festival which was sponsored by the Mansfield Music Study club Sunday afternoon. In previous years the club has presented the Junior Music club in a formal recital. This year, junior choirs of the city's churches were invited to present the program as a civic project.

After the organ prelude by Mrs. Dean Eckert and the invocation by Rev. Paul Saleste, pastor of the church, the assembly joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner." Mrs. George Hall, president of the Mansfield Music Study club, then introduced the guest director, Mrs. Mabel Younce, of Newark. Mrs. Younce conducted the massed choirs, comprised of 200 young people, in singing "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring," by Bach-Holler, and "The 100th Psalm," by Mueller. Mrs. Eckert played the organ accompaniment.

A 20-piece orchestra from the Crescendo club, directed by Mrs. Edward Gibson, entertained with the selection, "The Heavens Are Telling," by Haydn. The orchestra joined with the choirs and Mrs. Eckert, organist in playing the closing hymn, "Day Is Dying In the West," by Mueller.

Much credit for the success of the festival program is due the committee which had charge of arrangements: Miss Elizabeth Burneson, chairman; Mrs. Claude Ewing, Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine, Mrs. Edward Gibson and Mrs. H. H. Clingan.

Old World Parents Ruin Girl's Chances

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I am 22 years old and am self-supporting. I am going with a young man and we hope to marry within a year or two. I have a very old-fashioned family and it's getting on my nerves, although I really love my mother and dad.

"They were born in the old country and although they've been here twenty-five years, they're as set in their ways as the day they landed. When my callers came, dad monopolizes the conversation. He tells about sports when he was a boy, how he happened to come to the U. S. A., and how hard he has always worked.

"If father's out, mother comes in and knits. She doesn't have much to say, however. When we go to a movie or a dance, they sit up and wait for me and get frantic if I'm not in before midnight. My boy friend gets very discouraged sometimes and I'm afraid he will stop coming.

"My older sister eloped and is happily married. She wants me to leave home and come and live with them until I can marry. But I don't want to hurt my parents, as I feel they're only trying to be sociable. But what can I do to make them understand?

"MARIBEL."

I don't blame you in the least for rebelling against the kind of life you lead. To me there is no more pitiful spectacle than that of a girl condemned to look hungrily on while other girls enjoy their youth. Naturally, no young man wants to spend such ghastly evenings as you have described. Father playing the watchdog and recounting the exploits of his youth, mother equally vigilant, watching and knitting. .

You're in luck, my dear, in having a sympathetic sister who has shared the same disadvantages and knows the handicap of having too watchful parents. I've had similar letters from other girls but they had no sisters to help them out. To my way of thinking, no self-supporting girl of 22 should waste all her youth submitting to outworn standards of deforum. At the same time, don't desert the ship until you've tried diplomacy.

Get the married sister to do a little entertaining for you. Sunday night supper with a beverage, salad and desert is a jolly meal, especially when all hands help to prepare it. Next time you go to a dance, and have to keep early hours, have the married sister invite you to spend the night at her home.

Parents, especially old-country parents, don't understand that fine old adage, "When in Rome, do as the Romans." In Europe, girls were watched when they were young, and marriages were made by the parents of the boy and girl. But things are done differently in the U. S. A. and for a girl of 22 to submit to such restrictions would be humorous if it weren't for the underlying tragedy.

Parents, unless they are morbidly selfish, should help their daughters to make happy marriages instead of keeping them like caged birds.

High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

By MARIAN MARTIN

The Kindergarten Set chooses the button-front frock that makes it easy to dress oneself and not bother Mother! Pattern 9910 by Marian Martin is a favorite because it may have a bolero to match or contrast — making it into a complete ensemble just like grown-ups wear! The little gingham frock has a trim notched collar, short sleeves and squared-off side sections that add flare to the skirt. The bolero may have short or long sleeves and two optional round pockets. With the Sew Chart's aid, why not stitch up two wash frocks and a bolero to wear with both? For a touch of contrast, use a fresh white pique collar on one version of this little dress.

Pattern 9910 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, dress, requires 2⅜ yards 35 inch fabric.

Send 15 cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for this Marian Martin Pattern. Be sure to write plainly your Size, Name, Address and Style Number.

Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Feb. 17.

Judging by the lunar transits this should be a very lively and enterprising day, with initiative, enthusiasm for new projects probably inspired by bold and original ideas Innovations, novelty, strange slants on current problems may engage the attention, but this out-of-the-ordinary activity may incite enmity, antagonism and lack of support from superiors, employers, public bodies or major organizations.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of surprising advantages, with new and original propositions, born of independent, revolutionary, even spectacular ideas which must be pushed by personal initiative, courage and determination, since little encouragement will come from orthodox, public or established sources. Old friends or relatives may be more sympathetic.

A child born on this day while being sound and logical may have some startling ideas out of customary grooves, which may arouse opposition from influential sources.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I'll try to make it the most convincing apology ever uttered," Olina said with a smile which revealed how much she was enjoying the cajolery and deception which she was planning to stage against Stephen Redfield, for whom, I could see, she had nothing but contempt and aversion.

I made the grim mental comment that if the handsome, talented actor, "God's gift to women" in his own estimation and that of thousands of feminine fans, could know the real opinion of him held by the two most beautiful and gifted women of his acquaintance, Mary and Olina, his ego might be materially deflated, if such a thing were possible.

"I'm sure he will believe you," I said absently, for I had dismissed Redfield's reactions as not worth even a cynical thought, and was considering something which had just flashed into my mind.

Study The Painting.

"Do you mind waiting a little longer?" I asked Olina, for she evidently believed that my commissions for her were finished, and that it was time for her to go back to her mother. She was standing, looking at me a bit uncertainly, but her face lighted quickly as she spoke with emphasis.

"I am at your service for the duration," she said. "Of course I don't mind."

"Then, please sit down and look at this picture again,"—I put the small painting into her hands—"paying particular attention to that scroll of music running around it."

She sat down obediently, her eyebrows narrowing in concentration as she scanned the picture again.

"I'll confess I didn't pay much attention to that scroll," she said "I began at each corner and hummed the notes from there on, for I didn't know, of course, in this continuous scroll, where the thing began or ended, and the notes simply didn't make sense. I finally concluded somebody who didn't understand much about music had tried to copy something, and had mixed it up, but I really didn't give it much thought."

"I may be wrong," I said, "but I have what Mary calls 'one of Aunt Madge's hunches' that the crux of the whole message lies in that scroll. But I also tried to hum the notes mentally just now, and I didn't get anywhere. However, I'm not much of a musician. I imagine that if you study it closely enough, you'll discover what the artist meant."

May Be Written Backward.

"I'll do my very best," she said simply, and then for a few minutes she concentrated on the scroll, for the most part silently, but occasionally humming two or three notes together.

When she finally looked up at me there was disappointment in her eyes.

"I can't find a single starting place," she said. "And yet, I've changed my mind about its importance. I agree with you that the meaning is there if we can only find it. But it's as elusive as an Oriental mind."

She stopped and stared at me, and I gave her back a comprehending stare. Evidently the same thought had struck us both at the same time.

"Oriental—writing from right to left," she said. "Perhaps—"

She picked up the picture and looked at the scroll again, while, trying to repress my excitement, I rose and looked over her shoulder.

"You think it was written backward, in reverse order," I asked.

"I don't know, but I hope so," she said. "The notes appear to make better sense, anyway."

"Why don't you take it over to the desk?" I said. "You can copy it, reversing the order again. Then you'll be able to see it as a whole."

"I'll also be saving a lot of time," she said, and forthwith went to the desk where she worked steadily for a few minutes. Then she took up her reverse copy and began to hum the notes.

She scarcely had begun when a low, excited exclamation broke from my lips.

"Loch Lomond!" I said. "And it is a message, I am sure."

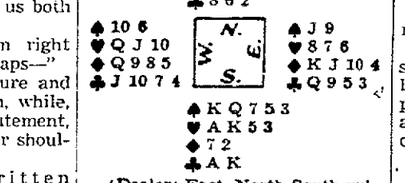
"The Authority on Authorities"

ARE THERE ENOUGH?

When you think about bidding a slam, two basic problems must be in your mind. Can you get in the lead before the defenders have taken the setting trick? That is the first one, but the second is equally important. Once you get in the lead, can you then take the necessary number of tricks, without having to give up the fatal one? Experts who refuse to use artificial ace-showing conventions will grant you that those devices are more accurate to settle the first problem. In sticking to natural bidding, however, they gain a certain amount of greater accuracy in diagnosing whether your side has enough trick-takers.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1. Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	4 NT	Pass	5 ♥
Pass	5 NT	Pass	6 ♣
Pass	6 ♠
2. Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	5 ♠

This deal, in a team match, produced a clear-cut victory for the natural bidders, as tricks lower down in the deck than the ones taken by aces and kings swung the balance. At both tables the opening lead was the heart Q, and it became immediately apparent that there was no earthly chance for the declarer to take 12 tricks unless the defenders would make a mistake in discarding. This they refused to do, so one team made its 5-Spades and the other was set at 6-Spades.

Where natural bidding was in use, South realized that, even if his partner had both missing aces, the contract might be set just as it was, if the side got into a slam. North could easily hold both those aces and still have about a minimum hand for a raise. When South bid 5-Spades, therefore, he was in effect asking North whether his raise to 2-Spades had been on a hand barely justifying that or on one richly justifying it. If it had been about a maximum North would have gone to 6-Spades, but it was a mnimum, so he passed the 5-Spades.

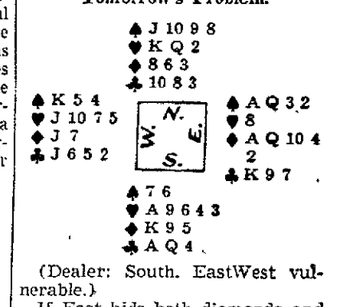
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. EastWest vulnerable.)

If East bids both diamonds and spades, and West ultimately doubles your 3-Hearts, how would you play to limit the set to one trick after you win the second round of diamonds?

CHAPTER IV.

Usually an evening with him not only relaxed her but added to her knowledge, a mutually satisfactory evening because Sid liked to talk and seemed disinclined to broaden his circle of acquaintances. But tonight Judith's thoughts drifted and several times she had to call herself to strict attention. Several times, too, she thought, "I'm not listening. I wish he'd go," and felt ashamed.

She was asleep when Emily came in. So much time was lost in awakening Emily in the morning that there was time neither for breakfast nor conversation. Downtown they parted, Emily seeming to feel her way rather than see it. Later in the morning she called Judith, saying, "Tim will be with his family tonight so I'll meet you at our little tea room for dinner."

She was late and sweetly apologetic. Sitting opposite Judith in the small attractive place, she said, "I've been half asleep all day. I know I shouldn't be out so late during the week. Tim doesn't have regular office hours It's any time he gets there. But last night, Judith, we had such a gorgeous time. You liked him, didn't you? And Sid liked him. You'd think he'd be spoiled with all he's had, but he isn't at all. When you've always had a lot, you take it for granted."

Judith thought, "This is Thursday and tomorrow night I'll see Max Worthington. Will I know why that first impression was like a terrific impact? Will I ever know? I couldn't fall in love with Tim, and Emily couldn't fall in love with Max. Perhaps you never know why."

Emily said, "And I won't be in town over the week-end. Tim's calling for me after work tomorrow and I'm spending the week-end with the Alexanders."

The Alexanders, Jim and Lois, were a conservative young married couple who had liked Emily since she had worked for Jim two years ago. They had been instrumental in placing her in her present position and who frequently invited her up to their charming Connecticut house.

Judith said, smiling, her voice conspicuously quiet and low in comparison to Emily's excited one, "A week-end with the Alexanders is also a week-end with Tim."

"Yes. They live only a few miles apart and Lois' mother and Tim's mother have known each other for ages. That—that helps a lot. Otherwise Mrs. Stevens may think I'm something Tim—well, something he picked up."

"You're not worrying, Emily?"

"Worrying?" She laughed. "I should say not! I'm too happy. I've never been so happy," Happy she looked, though there were faint shadows beneath her wide brown eyes and her thin hand, stirring the coffee, shook ever so slightly.

Judith wanted to say, "Emily, I met Max Worthington the day Phyllis and Ames sailed and I've scarcely thought of anything else sanely since. We met, he called me and I want tomorrow night more than I've ever wanted any night in my life. And yet I'm afraid. I'm afraid of his taking possession of me. I'm afraid of myself."

Friday . . . Just another bright, autumn day. Just another busy morning at the office, another hurried luncheon, another long afternoon. But to Judith it was a day to be remembered as the date would be remembered in all the years to come.

She would see herself riding down on the crowded elevator, saying good night to Giles Benson, the advertising manager, then signaling a taxi in the early twilight and looking anxiously at her watch, wondering whether an hour and a half would be time enough to dress. And thinking, "I'm glad Emily is away this week-end. She wouldn't understand me at all now."

There was mail for her, a letter from home, but she did not read it. Lamps lighted in the apartment, the shower running, her steps quick and graceful, her reflection in the dressing-table mirror saying, "You don't need rouge. Your face is flushed and warm. Your gray eyes tell how much you want Max to like you. See, your hand trembles, your lipstick is smeared and you'll have to take it off and put it on again. Where is your humor? Go ahead. Laugh at yourself for feeling this way."

She wore a two-piece black wool suit. She left the small black hat and her white gloves and black purse on the table in the foyer when she went to the living-room and opened the letter from her mother and had to read it twice in order to grasp its full meaning.

Was she coming home this week-end? Her sister Harriet and Larry were celebrating their fifth wedding anniversary and Larry's uncle was giving them a party at the country club, a hastily-arranged affair, but she, Judith was invited and please let me know as Harriet was eager to complete the plans. Couldn't she leave the store just a few hours earlier so that dinner would not be delayed too long? Folding the letter, slipping it back into the square white envelope, she thought, "I'll send a telegram tomorrow morning. Not until then . . . And felt guilty that she was keeping them waiting because she must wait for Max.

She glanced around at the dimly-lighted room, thinking that this particular setting would never have existed and she would not be sitting here tonight, more nervous than she cared to admit, awaiting for a man named Max Worthington if something strong in her nature had not driven her on. When something tremendous happens to you, she thought, you always think it was meant to be.

At a quarter to eight the harsh buzz of the bell brought her to her feet.

It was still, the same, the power, the impact, when she saw him again. So many things had been said and written about falling in love and all the things had been difficult. But this was it, looking at Max's strong body in a gray suit and at the blue eyes that were smiling.

"Hello," Max said. He chuckled. "Hello. Come in."

He stepped inside, saying, "Um . . . . Nice," as he surveyed the comfortable, cheerful room before looking at her again. "All for one small girl?"

"No. I share it with Emily Travers who is in Connecticut this week-end." She thought, "He's so poised and he looks as if this were an amusing little game he's enjoying very much. He makes me feel so young. He's older than I thought. How old I can't guess . . ."

"We've missed entirely too much time. Shall we go?" When she turned to put on her hat, he said, "You're very lovely, Judith. And you'll soon discover that I don't say things until I mean them."

His eyes swept over her, making her very young again.

Fifth Avenue was different when you were riding beside Max Worthington in a low maroon-colored car.

He said, "I'm nothing if I'm not honest, Judth. I am not a rich man. So it won't be the best place in town." Then he remarked,, "My full name is James Maxwell Worthington and there are some people who like to call me Jim. Sounds homey and comfortable. I want you to call me Max"

"People never call me Judy because my mother loathes nicknames and wouldn't allow it."

"Judy wouldn't become you. It's too frivolous and shallow."

"What am I?" she thought. "I thought I knew myself rather well until now; and now I'm only what you want me to be. Max. What are you? You were a baby once, then an adolescent, now a man. You have a family, friends, a business or profession. You live somewhere . . ."

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

It's one day too late to be wishing Kenny Krupp a happy birthday, but we can all wish he had one even though his celebration of 20 years on this earth comes as something of a major disaster to Mansfield high school's Tygers and their hopes for a Sandusky tournament championship.

Saturday night and Friday night and quite a few other nights in the past two months, Ken Krupp was an important cog in the Tygers' bucketball machine. Today he's an old man and no longer eligible to bump people around on the hardwood court, a trick at which he was a past master.

Loss of Krupp will not exactly wreck the Tygers, but there's no denying the fact that Coach Vern Hoffman will have a hard time replacing him. A tough boy under the bucket was Mr. Krupp, and Hoffman will look a long time before he finds another like him.

But Hoffman must be very happy today as he looks over the events of the past week-end, which saw the Tygers winning two games on a long road trip. The excursion to Hamilton and Springfield solved all of the Tyger tutor's problems in the revamping of his team.

The solution will be found in one line of Friday night's box score for the Hamilton game which said: "Romano — 9-3-21."

* * *

That line meant that Joe Romano had returned to form and could be counted on as a regular starter during the remainder of the season.

Hoffman can start Romano at forward with Dean Hahn, and shift Bob Winbigler to Krupp's guard, and the Tygers will still be a pretty fair basketball team.

And if Hahn hadn't been socked in the eye early in the Hamilton game, Hoffman wouldn't have been so sure that this new combination would work. That bump on the Hahn optic brought Romano off the bench and gave him his chance to shine.

Now Joe can keep on shining without talking the opposition into bumping his teammates off. Everything has worked out just dandy, in spite of birthdays and socks in the eye.

* * *

Loss of Krupp isn't such a blow, We'll just start a guy named Joe."

Tropical Offers to Up Purses

Track Operators Bet Prizes Will Hike Betting.

By FRED L. STROZIER

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Taking a tip from Hialeah Park's most successful racing season, Tropical park operators ahe gambling that richer purses at the spring meeting will pack in the crowds and loosen the betting strings.

Six stake races are slated for the small track's meeting opening March 9, offering total purse money of $32,500, an increase of $9,500. In 29 days, Tropical will distribute upwards of $275,000 to winning thoroughbreds.

* * *

The $1,000 minimum purse established late in the last meeting will be maintained despite threats of war and fewer tourists.

* * *

The Tropical handicap on closing day April 10 will be tops with a $10,000 purse. The Coral Gables handicap graduates from a $3,000 offering to become a $7,500 added feature. The Ponce De Leon handicap carries $5,000 in added money. It once was the $3,000 Royal Palm. The $5,000 added De Soto handicap has grown from last year's $3,000 Pan American.

* * *

Resident Manager Walter Donovan said some of the outstanding racers apparently would be attracted to Tropical's track for the first time because nothing else would be available with more purse money, and they would need occasional conditioners for the bigger summer stakes.

* * *

For its first winter meeting, Tropical opened during the furore after Pearl Harbor when people simply weren't in the mood, and in 16 days attendance dropped lightly to 114,000 and betting was off from $4,596,600 to $4,234,000.

* * *

Hialeah came along with total purses of $550,000 for 46 days and with every big-name horse in the land, except one, on hand, put up impressive records. In 35 days, attendance went up from 232,000 to 258,000 and betting from $11,206,000 to $11,533,000 over the records for last year.

* * *

Tropical hoped, in the second part of its split season, to profit from the factors that helped Hialeah — bigger purses, better horses, some driven here by the war-closing of California tracks, and a general state-inspired closing of bookmaking spots and other illegal gambling establishments in southeastern resort Florida.

Bird Dogs Discover Trials Not Always Captured By the Swift and Smart

By LYDEL SIMS
(Wide World Features)

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn. — Things happen to bird dog handlers and owners that ought not to happen to a dog.

Take a few examples from the historic National Field Trial club championship opening here Feb. 23:

Last year Handler Jack Harper was counting heavily on bringing in a winner—The Texas Ranger, a pointer with a sensational record. It would have meant $1,500 extra in cash and plenty in prestige for Harper.

* * *

So, the night before he ran, the Ranger got into some sweet horse feed and gobbled it up. The fine edge of his training shattered, he ran a poor race and lost his big chance.

Then there's Bet's Country Boy who set wrong-way history for the exclusive trials in 1940 by forgetting all about his business—pointing quail—and rushed off to kill two pigs and a chicken. That might be all right for your old shooting dog, but for a five-year-old champion it means disgrace.

Or take the dog running a race in 1939 that had the gallery gasping. With sure victory in sight, he happened upon a deer and forgot all about birds.

Another entry lost his chance for the title when he was attacked by a maddened pig. Still another cut his foot on hard ground and had to be taken up after a brilliant start. A third, primed for the title, went all to pieces when her usual handler was called away, and refused to work for a substitute.

Many a nervous handler, losing sight of his dog, has ridden the wrong direction—and the dog, discovered by someone else, has been unnerved by the absence of the usual trainer. Top-ranking contenders have turned in miserable performances because of factors outside their control—rain, hard ground, delays that play havoc with highly-keyed temperaments.

Texas Ranger's midnight snack was disastrous.

To the professional handler goes the immediate reward—the purse in addition to his high year-round retainer's fee. And the honor of guiding a dog to the nation's top bird dog championship is what puts a handler at the head of his business.

But the owner comes in for his share of the returns, too, and not just in the form of the tremendous thrill he gets from winning the title. A national champion's value for breeding purposes is tremendous.

For example, Dr. B. S. Lester, prominent Birmingham, Ala., physician, says frankly that Lester's Enjoy Wahoo, winner in 1940, "has more money in the bank than I have." Old Wahoo, now six years old, has paid out his expenses three or four times over.

You appreciate what that means when a man like Chesley Harris, who piloted seven dogs to the title, estimates it costs $25,000 to produce a national champion, including false starts and bad breaks. Or when Louis Bobbitt of Winston-Salem, N. C., owner of the 1939 winner, Sports Peerless Pride, estimates the cost of campaigning and training a dog at $1,000 a year.

But, Bobbitt adds proudly, "you just can't put any figure on the satisfaction that goes with the winning of the National Championship."

Hogan Forced To Playoff

Harbert Ties Up Texas Open In Final Round.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — (AP) — For a few minutes it seemed that Ben Hogan, golf's top money winner, had overcome his jinx and won his first major golf tournament in his home state.

He checked in yesterday with a 272, 12 under par for the 72 holes of the Texas open, a score the gallery conceded clinched the title for him.

But that was before Melvin (Chick) Harbert, a Michigan youth playing his second year as professional, finished his last seven holes.

* * *

Harbert proceeded to birdie five of those seven, for a six under par 65 for the round forcing the veteran into an 18-hole playoff.

Winner of the playoff receives $1,000 and the runner up $750.

One stroke off the leaders was Slammin' Sammy Snead for 273. He missed an 18-foot putt on the last hole that would have put him in a three-way tie for the lead.

Tournament money-winners included:

Byron Nelson, Toledo $162.50; Herman Keiser, Akron $162.50; Tiny Penna, Dayton, $10.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Unanswered questions: How high can Cornelius Warderdam pole vault? . . . Well, after coming as close as he did to 15-10 Saturday night we don't see what will stop him short of his 16-foot goal.

Who is going to beat Greg Rice?...Best answer seems to be "nobody."...Maybe after he quits two-miling Gil Woods, former Ashland college great, will catch up to his performances.

The fans forgot all about a rip-snorting scrap between Jimmy Webb and Johnny Colan to stand up and stare when Private Joe Louis Barrow, looking every inch a soldier, came down the aisle.

Gophers Set For Illinois

Will Attempt To Trim Leader's Cage Advantage.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Minnesota, which tried once before and failed, will attempt to defeat Illinois, the Big Ten leader, tonight at Minneapolis. If the Gophers miss on this chance they can practically kiss their title hopes goodbye."

The last time this pair tangled Minnesota could have taken over the Western conference lead from the Illini, who have had the top spot since Jan. 12. Tonight the Gophers can attain no such heights, but they can whittle the leaders' margin down to within sniping distance.

Success for the soaring sophomores of Illinois would put them within three games of the championship. Indiana and Wisconsin, who still have ideas about catching up, will be active against second division foes tonight, the Hoosiers facing Michigan at Ann Arbor, the Badgers Purdue at Lafayette.

A fourth game will match Chicago and Northwestern at Evanston, with Iowa and Ohio State idle.

Illinois regained winning form—after losing to Indiana a week ago—to spank Michigan Saturday night, 52-29. Minesota disposed of Purdue 24-27, and Indiana found it no trouble at all to wallop Chicago, 51-20, for the Maroon's 27th straight conference trimming, including 11 received this campaign. Iowa defeated Northwestern 46-44.

Veteran Says Boudreau Will Get Co-operation.

By STANMORE CAWTHON

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — Veteran Outfielder Gerald Walker believes youthful Lou Boudreau stands a chance of making good as manager of the Cleveland Indians.

"Lou says some of the men on the club don't know how to play baseball and he's going to teach them," declared Walker.

"He also says he's going to insist on team play instead of individual glory, and that's something the club really needs."

* * *

Walker said he thought the young third baseman would have one advantage that neither of his last two predecessors, Oscar Vitt and Roger Peckinpaugh, enjoyed.

"He'll get better co-operation from the front office," the outfielder asserted.

"C. C. Slapnicka, who used to be general manager, wouldn't back up the manager. Now Peckinpaugh is general manager and I expect he'll give Boudreau better backing than he got. Peckinpaugh knows what it's like to be in that spot, and I'll bet that when Boudreau fines the one or two soreheads that have caused the trouble on the club the fines will stick."

Walker didn't name the "one or two soreheads," but characterized them as "fellows who are just as nice as pie to you one day and your worst enemies the next."

"Sure there was dissention on the club last year," he remarked. "I knew as soon as we got back from our first eastern trip we wouldn't win the pennant. Too many players trying to grab the glory without thinking about the team."

Asked whether Boudreau's youth and relative inexperience would handicap him, Walker said he thought not because "baseball is pretty much of a cut-and-dried proposition now anyway."

* * *

Of his own prospects, Walker said he expected a much better season this year.

"I didn't do the club a whole lot of good last year, but I believe I'll hit much better this season," he declared.

PITCHER PREDICTS REDS WILL CAPTURE PENNANT

NASHVILLE — (AP) — Ray Starr, Cincinnati pitcher, predicted today that his club would win the National league pennant this year by 17 games.

Starr, enroute to the Reds' spring training camp at Tampa, Fla., said Cincinnati would have a better club than "any of the others this year," and added that it was doubtful if any of its players would be lost to the armed forces.

Four Hurlers Still Unsigned

Reds Can Work on Batting Without Holdout Trouble.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—It looks as though the Cincinnati Reds can concentrate on their No. 1 spring training problem — strengthening their batting—without much distraction from holdouts and contract troubles.

Of 18 pitchers and catchers who'll report to Tampa, Friday—a week earlier than usual—only four hurlers are unsigned. Two outfielders and five infielders of the remaining 16 players on the smallest roster in years are expected to negotiate contracts before their workouts begin Feb. 27.

* * *

Unsigned hurlers are Monte Pearson and Whitey Moore, each of whom started only four 1941 games; Les Hinckle, 30-year-old righthander bought from Syracuse last August but unused; and Jim Prendergast, up from Little Rock where he won 15 games last season.

* * *

Outfielders Jimmy Gleeson and Ival Goodman, both of whom were off their best from last year, have yet to reach contract terms. So do Third Baseman Chuck Aleno and Rookie Bert Haas; Shortstep Eddie Joost and his understudy, Bobby Mattick; and Rookie First Baseman Eddie Shokes.

* * *

Joost, now in Miami, prefers personal conference to mailing in his contract and is expected to talk things over with General Manager Warren Giles at Tampa, a procedure he followed last spring.

* * *

As to that aforementioned Redleg need to come out of the south with improved hitting, consider this: The 1942 Cincinnati roster has seven of the 76 National League players who participated in 80 or more games last year; but only Mike McCormick (22nd) and Frank McCormick (37th) weren't in the bottom third of those 76 in 1941 batting averages.

Eddie Lukon, Redleg outfielder acquired from Knoxville last summer and used in 24 games by the Reds, was married to Mary Goldbach Saturday at Burgettstown, Pa.

Scots Face Mounts For Title

Conference and State Titles Hinge on Outcome.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's college basketball teams have 42 games on tap this week, but only one—the Wooster-Mount Union classic at Alliance—is attracting major attention.

On the outcome of that one hinges the Ohio conference championship, as well as the state title—unless upsets galore pop up in the late-season contests.

The Mounts and the Scots have been beaten once in 15 starts each, Wooster losing to Duquesne and Mount Union to Muskingum. The Scots have an offensive average of 59 points, and a defensive average of 31, while the Mounts are scoring at a 56-point pace while allowing the foe 38.

* * *

The Woosters won the clash between the teams a year ago, taking over the state and conference leads, but both titles went back to the Mounts as the Scots bowed to Muskingum in the season's finale.

Along with the big game, the schedule features 14 other Ohio conference contests.

Here's the week's setup:

Monday: Kent State at John Carroll, Baldwin Wallace at Akron, Rio Grande at Morehead.

Tuesday: Ohio Northern at Findlay, Heidelberg at Ashland, Wittenberg at Denison, Ohio Wesleyan at Oberlin, Indiana Tech at Dayton, Defiance at Lawrence Tech, Wilberforce at Cedarville, Cincinnati at Ohio U., Marshall at Xavier.

Wednesday: John Carroll at Bowling Green, Wooster at Mount Union, Kenyon at Capital, Toledo at Youngstown, Taylor at Bluffton, Kentucky Wesleyan at Rio Grande.

Thursday: Denison at Muskingum, Capital at Heidelberg, Akron at Kent State, Calvin at De Sales, Wilmington at Miami, Dayton at Wittenberg, Ohio U. at Marietta.

Friday: Ashland at Ohio Northern, Bluffton at Findlay, Western Reserve at Baldwin Wallace, Louisville at Oberlin.

Saturday: Ohio State at Illinois, Case at John Carroll, Wittenberg at Muskingum, Kenyon at Wooster, Wilberforce at Wilmington, Ohio U. at Ohio Wesleyan, Allegheny at Hiram, Findlay at Defiance, Cincinnati at Hanover, Xavier at Kentucky, Western Reserve at Notre Dame, Louisville at Otterbein, Marietta at Fairmont State.

BUC UNIT RULES CHILDBEARING NOT NECESSARILY 'OBLIGATION'

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—With the wisdom of Solomon, the board of review of the state bureau of unemployment compensation held today that a woman who gives birth to a child is not necessarily "fulfiling a marital obligation!"

In a two-to-one decision, the board held that a woman who quit her job because of pregnancy was entitled to unemployment compensation, reversing a ruling of BUC Administrator H. C. Atkinson that she was only fulfiling a marital obligation.

As a result, the claimant, Mrs. Virginia K. Verrilli, of Columbus, will be entitled to draw weekly benefits of $6 for 18 weeks from the state's unemployment compensation fund.

Under the ruling, a woman, as soon after childbirth as she can show that she is ready to resume work, can draw benefits, provided other requirements are met.

The controversy revolved around that section of the law which reads:

"No individual may be paid benefits for the duration of any period of unemployment with respect to which the administrator finds that such individual quit work voluntarily to marry or because of marital obligations."

The majority opinion stated:

"We have found no authority which holds that parties having the marital status are obligated to have children. Thus it appears that there is no duty or obligation upon the part of the wife to become pregnant."

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

A young boy's taming of a wild Arabian horse is told in one of the new books displayed by the Mansfield Public Library children's department. Another book that will appeal to youthful fancy concerns adventure in a logging camp in the Pacific Northwest.

BLACK STALLION, by Walter Farley—Alec spent a summer vacation with his uncle who was a missionary in India. On the return voyage to New York the ship was sunk in a storm and Alec and a black Arabian horse on board were the only survivors. They became friends while fighting for survival on the desert island on which they found themselves and when they finally reached New York Alec trained The Black to be a racer.

HIGH TIMBER, by Rhoda Nelson—A girl is not especially welcome among even young boys in a lumbercamp and to make it worse this girl, Pat, believed in fairy tales and Indian lore. The disappearance of logs from the camp and the other problems of their little world in camp made friendship necessary however and the differences were put aside to solve the difficulties at hand.

'Gambling Ships' Will Soon Carry Defense Cargoes

LOS ANGELES — (INS) — Two ships which for years served as playgrounds for California's gambling fraternity are being refitted for active duty as defense cargo ships.

The Tango, a six-masted schooner, and the Rex, a four-masted barque, were farmed as California's "gambling ships," which anchored outside the legal limits and attracted thousands to their gambling tables.

The Tango has been rechristened the Marie, and probably will be used to carry lumber from the Pacific northwest to South Africa. The Rex will be used either in a similar capacity or as a cargo ship plying between the United States and the Philippines.

DEPRESSING NEWS LOWERS STOCK MARKET

Jap Conquest of Singapore Tends To Restrain Many Buyers.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Depressing war news from the far Pacific sapped the strength of the stock market today and leading issues backed down fractions to a point or so.

Trailing in the rear ranks in the early proceedings were U. S Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Goodyear, Boeing, United Aircraft, Westinghouse and Eastman Kodak. Numerous shares were unchanged.

The conquest of Singapore and other Japanese successes, tended to restrain many buyers, brokers said, although the opinion still was prevalent that reverses in this sector of the world had been pretty well discounted by the lengthy market backslide.

Market followers scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that the return of winter weather in northern districts had hampered collection and preparation of scrap supplies and consequently intensified the shortage of materials in the steel industry.

Those watching the utilities noted plans of the war production board for curtailment in the consumption of natural gas for heating in Ohio and 16 other states and the District of Columbia The move was for the purpose of assuring adequate supplies of natural gas for armament production.

LAUNCH NO. 6

Knox Says Alabama Marks Start of 'War Era.'

PORTSMOUTH, Va — (AP)— Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox hailed the launching of the 35,000-ton battleship Alabama here today—nine months ahead of schedule—as the end of the "defense era" and the beginning of a "war era."

"And ships will pour from our yards in ever increasing quantities; ships which bring us supremacy at sea; ships which will bring us victory," the secretary said.

The Alabama the sixth battleship to be launched under the defense building program and the last of a class of four which includes the Massachusetts, the Indiana and the South Dakota, has improvements over her sister ships, some of which have already joined the fleet, Secretary Knox revealed.
